

The Mack Lipkin Man and Nature Series

THE CULTURE OF NATURE, THE NATURE OF CHANGE

THURSDAY, APRIL 3
American Museum of Natural History
Lefrak Theater, 7:00 pm

FREE ADMISSION

Six fascinating voices bring their own unique perspectives to a discussion of how we, as a species, can sustain the distinctiveness of music, language, art, and nature in the face of an ever-changing world.

WNYC and Public Radio International's Julie Burstein ("Studio 360") leads this conversation between Kamal Bawa, Distinguished Professor of Biology at the University of Massachusetts, Boston, and Founder and President of the Ashoka Trust for Research in Ecology and the Environment, India; Kewalay Kamara, Professor of African-American Studies at John Jay College of Criminal Justice, CUNY; Chie Sakakibara, Lecturer, Native American Studies, University of Oklahoma; Luci Tapahonso, Navajo Poet and Professor of American Indian Studies and English, University of Arizona, Tucson; and Sarah Weiss, Assistant Professor, Department of Music, Yale University.

Sponsored by the Mack Lipkin Man and Nature Series and the Museum's Center for Biodiversity and Conservation (CBC), this event is held in conjunction with the CBC's annual Spring Symposium, "Sustaining Cultural and Biological Diversity in a Rapidly Changing World: Lessons for Global Policy" (April 2-5, 2008).

Reservations for this FREE event are recommended. Please phone 212-496-3423 or email biodiversity@amnh.org. For more information about the Center for Biodiversity and Conservation, please visit our website at <http://cbc.amnh.org/>.
